For three decades, New York Fools' Day Parade has offered an opportunity to express, in a way that is both outrageous and thoughtful, the foolishness of the world. Thousands of participants in the parade march down 5th Street to Washington Square with satirical floats creatively depicting the world as thoughtless, corrupt and self-destructive. The parade will conclude with the annual croquet game. Kicking off at noon on Monday, the parade will march down 5th Street to Washington Square where revelers will party like there's no tomorrow. The parade will conclude with the annual croquet game.
